Background

As required in the "Treaty Fisheries Management Plan for the 1837 Minnesota Ceded Territory for the Years 1998-2002" (TFMP), a survey of permit holders must occur at the end of year 1 and in any subsequent year that the number of permits exceeds the number in year 1 by more than 100%. Year 1 of the TFMP was the 1998-99 fishing year and 328 tribal members were issued permits (Madsen et.al. 2000). In year 2 a total of 365 permits were issued to tribal members (Miller and Madsen, 2000). In year 3 a total of 455 permits were issued to tribal members (Milroy and Madsen, 2001).

This report summarizes the number of fishing permits issued to tribal members for fishing in waters of the 1837 Minnesota ceded territory during year 4 of the TFMP. This fishing year ran from April 1, 2001 through March 31, 2002. Fishing methods covered by the permit include open-water angling, winter angling, and winter spearing (Figure 1).

Results

A total of 540 permits were issued to tribal members to fish in the Minnesota ceded territory during year 4 (Table 1). The number of permits issued for fishing in year 4 of the TFMP increased by 212 permits or 65% compared to year 1. This increase was below the 100% increase level that would have required another survey of permit holders.

The number of members who checked the various fishing methods for year 4 on the permit was 534 for open-water angling, 519 for winter angling, and 461 for winter spearing. On six permits, no fishing methods were checked off. Also, 43 members were issued duplicate permits but were only counted once.

Table 1. Number of tribal permits issued by various bands and GLIFWC for fishing in the 1837 Minnesota ceded territory during four tribal fishing years.

* The 2000-2001 fishing year was the first year that permits issued by GLIFWC personnel were counted separately from the individual bands.
